

Steelbridge Widens Reach, Acquires Max Property Management

November 12, 2009

Property management will now be part of Steelbridge Capital's range of services, an expansion of the new commercial real estate investment firm. Steelbridge will absorb Miami-based Max Property Management, a property manager working with lenders on bank-owned properties. It will now operate as Steelbridge Real Estate Services, and retain brothers Anthony Manno and Michael Manno, who were co-managing principals at Max Property. Jeremy Larkin, president of NAI Miami Commercial Real Estate Services Worldwide, said the Max Property partnership is a good fit because it diversifies Steelbridge's revenue stream. [\[SFBJ\]](#)